Material Design 2.0 is out and we can't wait to get our hands on Dialogs. In this tutorial, we'll be customizing Dialogs using Material Theme in our Android Application. Material Components - Dialogs Alert Dialogs are a vital part of applications. Typically used to bring user's attention to something important. Thanks to Material Design 2.0, we have much powerful Dialog now. First and foremost you need to add the material components dependency: implementation 'com.google.android.material:material:1.1.0-alpha09' Do not forget to inherit MaterialComponent Theme or descendants as the Activity Theme. Basic Implementation Now let's create a basic MaterialAlertDialog using the Builder pattern: new MaterialAlertDialogBuilder(MainActivity.this) .setTitle("Title") .setMessage("Your message goes here. Keep it short but clear.") .setPositiveButton("GOT IT", new DialogInterface.OnClickListener() { @Override public void onClick(DialogInterface dialogInterface, int i) { } }) .setNegativeButton("CANCEL", new DialogInterface.OnClickListener() { @Override public void onClick(DialogInterface dialogInterface, int i) { } }) .show(); This is how it looks on the screen: Android Material Dialog Basic Let's compare it with the old alert dialog: Android Material Dialog Old Alert Surely, the new MaterialAlertDialog looks much better. AlertDialog loses its content on configuration change. Hence it is recommended to use AppCompatDialogFragment. But for the sake of simplicity of this tutorial, we'll stick with MaterialAlertDialog. Styled Buttons We can style the buttons of MaterialAlertDialog since they are just MaterialButtons. Setting outline button/borderless button, ripple effects etc. Let's see an example: @style/Alert.Button.Positive @style/Alert.Button.Neutral @color/colorPrimaryDark @color/colorAccent @android:color/white 14sp false @android:color/transparent @color/colorAccent @android:color/darker_gray 14sp new MaterialAlertDialogBuilder(MainActivity.this, R.style.AlertDialogTheme) .setTitle("Title") .setMessage("Your message goes here. Keep it short but clear.") .setPositiveButton("GOT IT", new DialogInterface.OnClickListener() { @Override public void onClick(DialogInterface dialogInterface, int i) { } }) .setNeutralButton("LATER", new DialogInterface.OnClickListener() { @Override public void onClick(DialogInterface dialogInterface, int i) { } }) .show(); Android Material Dialog Button Styled Cut Shaped Dialog We can set shapes on Material Dialogs now! Let's style one as cut shaped by inheriting from the ShapeAppearance style. @style/CutShapeAppearance cut 10dp Now just set the style in the builder constructor: new MaterialAlertDialogBuilder(MainActivity.this, R.style.CutShapeTheme) .setTitle("Title") .setMessage("Your message goes here. Keep it short but clear.") .setPositiveButton("GOT IT", new DialogInterface.OnClickListener() { @Override public void onClick(DialogInterface dialogInterface, int i) { } }) .setNeutralButton("LATER", new DialogInterface.OnClickListener() { @Override public void onClick(DialogInterface dialogInterface, int i) { } }) .show(); Android Material Dialog Cut Shaped Round Shaped Dialog @style/RoundShapeAppearance rounded 16dp Setting the above style in the Dialog Builder constructor from the previous code snippet gives us this: Android Material Dialog Round Shaped Aren't these designs so drool-worthy! Custom Font Dialog Lastly, we can set custom font families on the button and title as well as shown below: @font/amatic false This gives us a completely new look dialog as shown below: Android Material Dialog Typography That brings an end to this tutorial. The font used above is available in the source code attached below. AndroidMaterialComponentDialog Github Project Link Join our DigitalOcean community of over a million developers for free!
